Film aims to help bring Afghan refugees to study in N.M.

When Afghan teenager Bismah Mohammadi's family was taken by the Taliban, she was forced to relocate to Indonesia, where she now lives at the Cikarang Refugee Learning Center.

Rather than despair, she leveraged her experiences in exile to become a filmmaker. Her film 'The Struggle' aims to help bring Afghan refugees to study in the United States.

Increasing number of addicts...

They fed from narcotic addicts, the number of addicts is increasing annually. This capacity falls short of treatment of high number of people who are suffering from narcotics addiction.

One of the concerns of the ministry of communication is the reduction of people to narcotics. This stems from mal-treatment of their family members.
