

Why terrorism not rooted out in Afghanistan?

Afghanistan is battling the flames of ongoing war and victims of international terrorism. War in Afghanistan has changed a general and complex element as it has regional and international dimensions. The increasing regional nature of the current war has the possibility of destabilizing all the region. Violence and threats posed by terrorist groups have periodically increased in Afghanistan. Millions of people's international relations commission and a number of Afghan experts believe that war in Afghanistan has intensified and increased comparing to other wars in the country. "This is still insecurity in Afghanistan where the people are concerned over their future situation in the country in deteriorating day by day as the number of terrorist groups has increased in recent years; therefore, Afghans are living in fear," head of parliament's international relations commission Zouhair Pathakzai said. Meanwhile, a number of Afghan political experts see after 17 years of war on terror in Afghanistan, terrorism was not their root but the suppression of being people of Afghanistan that want to stay and help develop the country in a democratic way. "Of course, there's also been war and development in Afghanistan. Previously, there was only one insurgent group and now there are more than 20 terrorist groups fighting in clear signs for ending the ongoing war in the country. "This is still insecurity in Afghanistan where the people are concerned over their future situation in the country in deteriorating day by day as the number of terrorist groups

Bibi Shirin could display her handicrafts in several countries

A number of women can economically play effective role in the society, as reported by Afghan women have obtained necessary and achievements in terms of handicrafts. Head of Khairan Handicrafts Company, Asma said, many women are working in my project, over 100 women would working in different sections. She said, I mostly worked on Afghan clothing, hand-made jewelry, etc. which are popular in the market. She said, I have suffered from lack of funds, I think efforts to train these women who have financial problems or become self-sufficient. She said her company has been registered in ministries of women affairs, commerce and women entrepreneurs' federation. She added, holding exhibitions are effective whether they are abroad. She said, I have traveled to many countries such as India, Tajikistan, Moscow, Dubai and elsewhere there displaying handicrafts and earned good money. She said, annually, we hold a 14-day handicrafts fair in Kabul.

At the end, she said my message to women was to never give up, they should make effort to grow what they have been doing. They should be successful and enter the market to improve Afghan handicrafts on one hand and carry good money on the other. This is why the women in cooperation with the government and non-government organizations have made considerable achievements in different fields over the last 15 years. Karimullah said.

Terrorism does not help..

I'll repeat what I said earlier that terrorism does not help anybody. Do you think that if the situation in Pakistan improves, then terrorism will be better in the whole region? I think if countries in the region cooperated then we'll be able to address some of the challenges. We might not be able to solve all the issues but surely the overall situation will improve. You have the said that Taliban government is also in the loop as far as talks with the Taliban are concerned. Do you want to say anything about that? As I mentioned earlier we would have direct talks between Afghan government and Taliban. There have been initiatives from other countries. But as far as Taliban have not shown serious intentions in the talks in order to solve issues peacefully. Mawlawi Dost
